Public works OK grants, water tank inspections

BY MARK CAMPBELL

Madison's Board of Public Works on Monday gave its blessing to the largest quarterly grant allocation in the history of the city's Preservation and Community Enhancement Grant (PACE) program.

The Board followed through on weeks of applications and two days of scrutiny by the PACE Review Board by approving 18 applications for more than $208,000 in repairs and renovations with a focus on salvaging dilapidated and dangerous structures in three targeted neighborhoods.

In the past, the PACE program granted funds of up to $7,500 to help property owners and investors make exterior improvements to structures in the downtown historic district but the program was expanded earlier this year to allocate up to $25,000 to assist and motivate property owners to go even further and tackle dilapidated and dangerous structures.

Seven such properties were included in Monday's first round of the expanded program.

"I'm thrilled with the work that is going to be done on Walnut Street," Public Works board member Karl Eaglin said. "They've been waiting for someone to invest and for the city to invest with them."

Mayor Bob Courtney, who championed the proposal when he ran for office last fall, said the first dangerous and dilapidated properties approved on Walnut are just part of big improvements to that neighborhood, which also has a major grant proposal in the works for a new city park to be developed there. However, he noted that the projects approved Monday are from across the city and he hopes the program only continues to grow.

"It's all across the city," Courtney said. "It's not just Main Street but it's side streets, too."

Courtney noted that the city's Preservation Office and City Planner-Preservation Coordinator Nicole Schell have worked hard on the project as did the Historic District Board Of Review. He said efforts have been made to streamline the application process and that additional changes could be forthcoming to make the process even easier.

The grants, which all require a 50/50 match, in many cases are still only a fraction of what some of projects will cost to complete. Courtney said based on the applications, the city's $208,000 investment will be met by another $500,000 investment by the property owners and investors in the current round and that the benefits to property values and public safety in the neighborhoods make the projects worth even more to the city.

Madison JAG program wins big at state

Program makes big turnaround in one year

BY COLLIN OVERTON

Madison students earned four state-level awards through the Jobs for America's Graduates (JAG) this year, capping off a strong but unconventional season for the program.

After submitting virtual entries for the annual state JAG competition due to the virus pandemic, Madison students won a mix of individual and team awards. The team of Laney Cox, Abigail Hanson and Daesja Jay took first place for Project Based Learning (PBL), Jacob Smith took second place in Public Speaking, Caroline Kirby won an honorable mention for outstanding senior and the Madison chapter finished second in Marketing.

Some competitions were done through video submissions. Others, like Kirby's senior presentation, were conducted through a live interview, said Madison JAG coordinator Whitney Matthews.

This year was the first that PBL was done at the state level, as students were asked earlier this year to design a learning project geared toward career exploration. Cox, Hanson and Jay compiled information for upcoming high school students into a sleek Google Sites page, then, working with students in the middle school college and career class, spent a day teaching them about goal-setting and making the most out of Madison's resources. Matthews said the group then took it a step further by assigning JAG mentors for every middle schooler in the class.

As for the marketing competition, the team of Nikki Gatke, Kelly, Kirby and Cox used social media and digital skills to shoot and edit a promotional video for Madison's JAG program that could be shared across platforms. The video was shared with school counselors who are now using it to promote the program to sophomores eligible for JAG next year, Matthews said.

Submitted

Only one take was allowed per submission for Public Speaking, in which participants had to speak to judges as if they were convincing their school board to start a JAG program. Matthews helped Smith record the presentation remotely and allowed him one extra take after his computer screen froze the first time mid-speech and ruined the recording, she said.

"He is really a great public speaker," Matthews said of the junior. "That's why I tell Jacob all the time 'You're going to be shaking hands and kissing babies later on in life.' "

Although apart for the rest of the school year, Matthews and her students have kept in touch through class and daily mentoring. The group has been meeting on Zoom twice a week for class and it's apparent from those sessions how much they miss each other, she said.

"Half the time, most people will get off the call, and then I'll have four or five students stay on the call and just be like 'Can we just hang out talk?" Matthews said. "That's what I told them, we're missing you guys too. This isn't just me, this is other teachers that miss you the same, this is hard for all of us."

Madison senior named 2020 Lilly Scholar

BY SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

A senior at Madison Consolidated High School has been named as the Community Foundation of Madison and Jefferson County's 2020 Lilly Endowment Community Scholar for Jefferson County.

Luka Chabukashvili

The four-year, full-tuition scholarship has been awarded to Luka Chabukashvili, who will receive full tuition to the Indiana college or university of his choice and a $900 stipend for required books and equipment.

Luka is the son of David and Natia Chabukashvili of Madison, and will be attending Indiana University-Bloomington with plans to major in biology. He actively participates in National Honor Society, varsity soccer, theatre and MCHS and has received multiple gold and gold with distinction awards for saxophone at regional and state competitions with the Madison band program. He participates in the Mayor's Youth Council, Medical Explorers at KDH and serves on the United Way Board.

"I am so blessed to receive this award from the Community Foundation and Lilly Endowment Inc.," Chabukashvili said. "It is a truly life changing award and I am blessed to be among such a talented group of students. I'm so thankful for my teachers, friends and family that have supported me on my academic journey. It means the world and I can't express my gratitude enough."

A total of 23 Jefferson County students applied for the scholarship this year with six finalists chosen. In addition to Chabukashvili, the other finalists and their schools were: Issac Boone, Jessie Dyer and Harper Watson, all of Madison; Madelynn Jacobs of Southwestern and Nathaniel Pawlak of Shawe Memorial. Boone, Dyer, Jacobs, Pawlak and Watson will each receive a $1,000 Community Foundation Scholar Award for being named a finalist.

Independent Colleges of Indiana Inc. (ICI) administers the Lilly Endowment Community statewide and selects the final recipients. ICI is a nonprofit corporation representing 30 regionally accredited degree granting, nonprofit, private colleges and universities in the state.

The scholarships are the result of a statewide Lilly Endowment initiative to help Hoosier students reach higher levels of education. A total of 4,769 full-tuition scholarships have been awarded and more than $405 million in scholarship tuition has been provided since the program's inception in 1998.

Trimble funds different-looking primary for 2020

Mail-in ballots to drive up costs

BY COLLIN OVERTON

Trimble County is appropriating funding for the upcoming primary election much differently this year due to the virus pandemic, according to information presented at Monday's Fiscal Court meeting over Zoom.

Like other communities across the country, the county is grappling with how to safely and economically conduct primaries this year with the COVID-19 pandemic affecting polling places, the number of advance ballots being requested and virtually every other part of the election. In an April 22 meeting, County Clerk Tina Browning said she expected to exceed her election budget by about $1,500 due to postage costs from the dramatic increase in mail-out ballots.

Browning returned Monday with an update on the process including three new requests: the purchase of a half-page ad in the Trimble Banner explaining how in-person voting will take place, $1,000 for Plexiglas stands to protect poll workers and $3,000 to cover the cost of postage for ballots.

"We are asking, if possible, to please vote before election day on June 23, because we expect long lines and in late June the weather is always so hot. I'm sure they'll be out onto the sidewalks and into the parking lots of the schools," Browning said.

For those who still want to vote in-person, Browning said her office requested polling locations at Milton and Bedford Elementary Schools with two precincts at each building. That might now be allowed, however, since she said the Kentucky State Board of Elections had requested a reduction in precincts and might ask the county to reduce voting to one additional polling place.

Browning said she has selected poll workers, whose salaries will be covered by the state with federal dollars to save counties that expense and our poll workers will man each precinct.

The state will also covering the cost of return postage on mail ballots, but the Clerk's office still needs $3,000 to cover the initial cost of mailing ballots to residents.

Browning's office also asked for $1,000 to cover the cost of five Plexiglas screens handmade by Solid Waste Officer Bruce Pyles to protect poll workers in June. Browning said she initially looked into buying SuperATV screens at a cost of $230 each, but wanted stands big enough to cover more than one person.

In addition, she requested purchase of a half-page ad in the local newspaper explaining the process for safely voting in person this year and stressing the availability of early voting and voting by mail. Early voting is

Red Cross needs blood donations

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

Due to an increase demand now that reopening guidelines are allowing more medical procedures to be performed by hospitals and the fact donations have fallen off during the COVID-19 emergency, the American Red Cross is asking for healthy individuals to step up to help patients experiencing health crises by donating blood or platelets.

As COVID-19 continues to affect daily life, people may not be thinking about blood donation. But blood and platelets are needed daily to help patients battling disease and facing the unexpected. Donating blood is an easy way to care for each other and ensure hospitals have the blood products patients rely on.

There are several donation opportunities coming up locally in Madison and Jefferson County.

Today, Calvary Baptist Church, 2632 Michigan Road, Madison, will host a blood drive from 2 p.m. to 7 p.m. while Living Waters Mennonite Church, 8600 West Jones Road, Lexington, will host a drive from 2 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Madison Fitness, 1321 Clifty Drive, Madison, will host a drive from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. on Friday, May 22.

According to the Red Cross, there is an especially critical need for African American blood donors to help patients battling sickle cell disease.

Many patients, like those with sickle cell disease, have rare blood types that are unique to certain races and ethnicities. Because most people who have sickle cell disease are of African or Latino descent, African American blood donors may be the best match for sickle cell patients in need. Since mid-March, the number of African Americans donating blood with the Red Cross has dropped by more than half amid the coronavirus outbreak.

Healthy individuals who are feeling well are asked to make an appointment to donate by downloading the free Red Cross Blood Donor App, visiting RedCrossBlood.org, calling 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767) or enabling the Blood Donor Skill on any Alexa Echo device. Donors are asked to schedule an appointment prior to arriving and are required to wear a face covering or mask while at the blood drive, in alignment with Centers for Disease Control and Prevention public guidance.

As a thank-you for helping ensure a stable blood supply, all who come to give blood or platelets through May 31 will receive a special Red Cross "We're all in this together" T-shirt, by mail, while supplies last. Donors must have a valid email address on file to claim their T-shirt.

Woman injured when thrown from trike

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

A Madison women was injured when the trike motorcycle she was a passenger on collided with a car at the intersection of State Roads 56 and 62 Saturday afternoon near Hanover.

The accident occurred at about 4:30 p.m. when the trike, driven by Mark Powell, 63, of Madison, was heading westbound on S.R. 56 and collided with a Chevrolet Impala driven east on S.R. 56 by Charles Kindoll, 77, of Hanover. The collision happened when Kindoll attempted to turn left onto S.R. 62 in front of the trike and the two vehicles clipped each other.

A passenger on the trike, Judith Powell, 63, of Madison, was thrown from the vehicle and ended up in a field to the right side of the roadway. She complained of pain and was transported to a hospital. There were no other injuries in the crash.

Kindoll told police he did not see the trike coming uphill toward the intersection when he attempted to make his turn onto S.R. 62.

No charges have been filed in the incident, which was investigated by the Jefferson County Sheriff's Department. King's Daughters EMS also responded to the scene.

Matthews came along at just the right time for the program eight years ago, when it had gone through several instructors in a year and was in the process of being phased out at Madison. Only 13 students were registered out of the required 40 and she remembers being told to simply keep it under control for the last year.

But once Matthews took over, "everything clicked," and by scheduling time 35 students had applied to join the program for the following fall, she said.

"These kids were not up to talking to me, trusting me, anything like that … I just felt like no one ever got in there and explained things the way they could be explained. Someone didn't take the time to explain how great the program actually is and I know I was supposed to be phasing it out, but I couldn't help myself," she said.

Since then Matthews as helped students make big decisions on college, financial aid and employment, especially throughout the shutdown while major events were on hold. Matthews said she's tried to keep students busy and focused since many feel out of place with their last years uprooted and their schedules looking uncertain for the foreseeable future.

"A lot of them are like 'We missed out on the semester, basically. This isn't just two months, this is a semester of our lives … these kids are genuinely worried about being prepared," she said.

One key requirement of the program is for seniors to decide on post-high school plans — such as college, employment or military enlistment — by the end of May. Matthews said 13 of 18 seniors have made their decisions and most plan on some form of post-secondary school.

But even for the juniors, the pandemic has created confusion about standardized tests and other steps students are facing to be ready for their senior year, Matthews said. She spoke highly of her students this year, some of whom she's gotten very close to over the course of their time in the program.

"Hopefully in the years to come we're going to have similar groups that are just as motivated to do everything that these kids did," Matthews said. "And I'm glad that this is the class that did it, because I do feel like a lot of the underclassmen look up to this class that's graduating right now, so hopefully they gained something from that."

required to start by June 8, but the county is aiming to start voting early next week depending on whether its voting computer and portal is ready, Browning said.

"It's supposed to be by appointment only, but I'm not going to turn anybody away, and if somebody shows up and they don't have an appointment they may have to wait outside for a little bit, but we want as many people to vote beforehand to try to keep that crowd down on June 23," she said.

Browning said her office will mail postcards to residents describing how to get access the election portal and order a ballot and that those without internet access or a computer may call her office to place the order.

"We hope we don't ever have to do this again, but we thank you for being ready for it," said Judge Executive Todd Pollock, whose office reopened Monday for the first time since March.

In other business Monday:

• Magistrates approved construction of a subdivision on Webb Lane to develop a 77-acre farm. Pollock said the developer, Bobby Smith, proposed the development about a year ago and the property so far has proposed subdivision into 14 tracts. The approval is contingent upon receiving a letter from the Henry County Water District stating it will not install fire hydrants on the property, which straddles the Trimble-Henry County line.

— Fiscal Court approved roadwork with Louisville Paving and Construction to begin on six county roads, some of which to be paid for by discretionary funds received from the state last fall. The roads include: Cooper's Bottom Road, Hubbard Lane, Ogden-Mosley Road, the North Gate Subdivision, Rowlett Lane and Fisher Farm Road.

• Magistrates appointed Larry Brown to a four-year term on the Trimble County Water District Board to expire in March 2024.

• Approved two separate motions to apply for grants through the Kentucky Department of Homeland Security for both emergency management grants in response to the COVID-19 emergency and protective vests for law enforcement.

MADISON COURIER BOYS TENNIS CO-PLAYERS OF THE YEAR

DeAtley brothers power Rebel netters

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Editor's Note: Although boys tennis is a fall sport in Indiana, it is a spring sport in Kentucky. In order to maintain fairness, The Madison Courier was waiting until the conclusion of the spring season to name a player of the year in the sport.

Nina Campbell

Landon and Jordan DeAtley have had a lot of experience competing with each other in a variety of sports growing up but it wasn't until recently that the competition spilled over onto the tennis courts. And that competition has paid dividends for the Southwestern boys tennis program.

The two brothers helped propel the Rebels to one of their best seasons in recent memory and are this year's Madison Courier Boys Tennis Co-Players of the Year.

"It's nice to have them. Since they're brothers, they're very competitive which motivates both of them to get better," Southwestern coach Robert Green said. "Jordan wants to beat Landon and Landon doesn't want Jordan to beat him. So they both get to practice and become more consistent and focus their approach on their game to become better players."

Landon, a junior, spent this season playing No. 1 singles, his second season in the top spot while Jordan, a freshman, maintained the No. 2 singles position.

Both players had their share of success. Facing off against the other team's best players, Landon had a solid season at No. 1 going 9-10 while Jordan took off and posted the team's best record at 16-3. Southwestern went 11-5 as a team and saw its season end in the sectional championship but each is hoping for bigger things in 2020.

"It went a lot better than the previous season," Landon said with a smile. "I felt more confident and mostly felt more control of my opponents."

"I was really happy with my freshman season," Jordan said. "It was good to start off with a winning record."

Although he's the younger of the two, Jordan has actually been playing tennis longer. He took up the sport in fifth grade and played No. 1 singles throughout his middle school career.

His hopes at playing No. 1 in high school were dashed when he ran up against his older brother. Landon won a playoff to keep the No. 1 singles spot and maintained it throughout the season.

"Jordan is a great person. He's a lot quieter than Landon but he's very competitive," Green said. "He's also a little different than Landon in his approach. He's more consistent with his shots and he really digs down in tough matches and I think that comes from his middle school matches. That experience helped him translate to No. 2 singles right away."

Landon first started playing tennis as a freshman when he got a taste of the sport in open court and was invited to come out for the team by Green. He got thrust into the No. 1 spot as a sophomore — something he admits he wasn't ready for — and has become the squad's leader.

"Landon is a great, great kid. He's always been good for us. He's our captain and he leads by example," Green said. "There's nothing bad to say about him. He works hard, he has a great attitude, he always rises to the occasion when we need him the most."

Both brothers admit that tennis isn't their number one sport. Each are avid baseball players and although their spring season was wiped out due to the COVID-19 pandemic, both are hopeful that they can get back on the field later this summer.

But both also admit that they have become taken with the sport of tennis. The sport requires a different skill set than what they need in baseball and each loves the challenge of getting better.

"The mental side can get to me sometimes," Landon said, adding with a smile. "I'll be down on court one and I'll scream at the top of my lungs. But that's what makes it fun, trying to control yourself."

"I like how it makes you depend on the whole team," Jordan said. "It's a team sport. If one person loses, it's OK because you have three others that have a chance to win."

Of course there is also the competitive aspect that can only come between brothers. While Landon is fully expecting to play No. 1 singles during his senior season, Jordan doesn't plan on just giving him the spot.

"It can get competitive. We played a match this year to see who got one singles and he got me this year but it was competitive," Jordan said.

"In the first tournament we played, we played doubles and we won the tournament. Whenever we're playing together, it's a good thing," Landon said then added with a laugh. "But when we're playing against each other, it's not a good thing."

As long as they're on the court together, it will always be a good thing for Southwestern.

Harvick's 50th Cup win 'just weird' without fans

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

DARLINGTON, S.C. — Kevin Harvick screamed in celebration as he crossed the finish line and then performed a traditional, smokey burnout.

Kevin Harvick

His 50th career Cup Series victory felt like a lot like the others — until he climbed out of his No. 4 Ford.

"Dead silence," he said, looking at the empty stands. "It is weird just because there's nobody up there."

Harvick won NASCAR's return race, taking the checkered flag at Darlington Raceway 71 days after the series' last event.

Harvick took the lead from Alex Bowman on a late restart and pulled away over the final 30 laps.

Bowman finished second, followed by Kurt Busch, Chase Elliott and Denny Hamlin.

Harvick is the only driver to finish in the top 10 in each of the Cup Series' five races this season.

He made the series' resumption look like a Sunday drive in what surely will go down as one of the strangest races in NASCAR history.

Masks, social distancing, remote broadcasting and a fan-free speedway were among the most noticeable differences in the return.

Harvick emerged from his car in victory lane wearing a black face mask — what could become NASCAR's new normal.

NASCAR chose the oldest speedway on the Cup circuit as the safest place to restart its season after eight events were postponed amid the pandemic. NASCAR had been facing a financial collapse if races didn't resume on national television.

Ryan Newman finished 15th in his first race since suffering a head injury in a terrifying, last-lap crash in the Daytona 500.

Matt Kenseth, who came out of retirement to replace fired Kyle Larson at Chip Ganassi Racing, was 10th.

The 48-year-old Kenseth raced in the Cup Series for the first time since the 2018 season finale.

He was the oldest driver in the field.

This was the first of 20 races across seven Southern states between now and June 21.

Darlington will host two more NASCAR races over the next three days.

The first race back was deemed The Real Heroes 400 and was dedicated to health care workers.

Fall in love with yourself again

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: I am 81 years old and a longtime reader of your advice column. I thought the message below might be useful to you and your readers somehow. It is certainly authentic. I received it as a link to click on. I couldn't open it, but the sender, who is president of a local seniors group that has been keeping members entertained with all sorts of items in her daily email, kindly typed the test for me. It was Steve Job's final essay before dying a billionaire at age 56. — Words of Wisdom

"I reached the pinnacle of success in the business world. In some others' eyes, my life is the epitome of success. However, aside from work, I have little joy. In the end, my wealth is only a fact of life that I am accustomed to. At this moment, lying on my bed and recalling my life, I realize that all the recognition and wealth that I took so much pride in have paled and become meaningless in the face of my death.

"You can employ someone to drive the car for you, make money for you but you cannot have someone bear your sickness for you. Material things lost can be found or replaced. But there is one thing that can never be found when it's lost — Life. Whichever stage in life you are in right now, with time, you will face the day when the curtain comes down.

"Treasure love for your family, love for your spouse, love for your friends. Treat yourself well and cherish others. As we grow older, and hopefully wiser, we realize that a $300 or a $30 watch both tell the same time. You will realize that your true inner happiness does not come from the material things of this world. Whether you fly first class or economy, if the plane goes down — you go down with it.

"Therefore, I hope you realize, when you have mates, buddies and old friends, brothers and sisters, who you chat with, laugh with, talk with, have sing songs with, talk about north-south-east-west or heaven and earth, that is true happiness! Don't educate your children to be rich. Educate them to be happy. So when they grow up they will know the value of things and not the price. Eat your food as your medicine, otherwise you have to eat medicine as your food.

"The One who loves you will never leave you for another because, even if there are 100 reasons to give up, he or she will find a reason to hold on. There is a big difference between a human being and being human. Only a few really understand it. You are loved when you are born. You will be loved when you die. In between, you have to manage!

"The six best doctors in the world are sunlight, rest, exercise, diet, self-confidence and friends. Maintain them in all stages and enjoy a healthy life."

Dear Words of Wisdom: Thank you for passing these words along. Though it's been disproven that Steve Jobs wrote this, its message is still important. I love the idea that we are loved when we are born and when we die and the point is to maintain and return to love while we are here and now. Hold your family a little closer; cherish friends. Help those who are unable to help themselves, and always forgive yourself first so that you can forgive others. When we truly love ourselves, we able to love one another.

Frustrated being on the front line

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: I am a USPS mail carrier. My husband was sent home six weeks ago, with pay, while I head out every morning to the possibility of contracting COVID-19.

I've been angry and resentful, and scared. It was most acute about two weeks ago, and, after some tears and talks, I've calmed down somewhat. I just keep looking ahead and cannot wait for this to end. — Husband at Home

Dear Husband at Home: Your fear and anger are very understandable. And yet you have been going out there and delivering our mail anyway. That is called courage. Courage is not the absence of fear, but rather, it is having fear and doing it anyway. You are a hero and we thank you very much for your service to humanity.

Dear Annie: I wanted to inform the grandfather who was resentful about waiting in lines at the amusement park that the Fastpass is not just for those who are wealthy and can afford to pay for the pass. It is also for children with disabilities so they do not have to wait in lines. They can also be invisible disabilities — ADD and ADHD and brain injuries — that makes waiting in line a difficult thing for children to do. To enhance their experience at the park, or, in some cases, even make it possible to go to the park and have them be able to enjoy the outing, families can sign up in advance for the pass to avoid the lines.

I would never have known this, but my grandson is one of the children who needs this assistance and would not have been able to tolerate the line otherwise.

Your answer was spot on, but there can be more than meets the eye as a reason for "cutting the line"! Thinking outside the box is another great skill to instill in your children and grandchildren, as well as tolerance for those less fortunate. — Thinking Outside the Box

Dear Thinking Outside the Box: Thank you for your letter. It highlights a very important lesson. We can't judge a book by its cover. There could be so much more going on.

Dear Annie: I used to have uncontrolled underarm odor for decades no matter what I did. I finally asked my doctor. His advice: Use tea tree oil (over the counter at drugstores). Use about 10 drops in an ounce of water on a cotton ball to wipe the underarms and let it dry. Later, use antibacterial soap and deodorant. I have had no odor for over two years. — Not Stinky Anymore

Dear Not Stinky Anymore: Thank you for sharing your suggestion. Tea tree oil is completely natural so it has a low chance of side effects.

"Ask Me Anything: A Year of Advice From Dear Annie" is out now! GRANTS

Projects receiving grants must be completed within one calendar year so the impact will be seen and felt sooner rather than later, especially for some properties that have sat decaying for decades after being gutted by fire of left to rot by abandonment.

In other business, the Board of Public Works approved a $19,110 bid by Pittsburgh Tanks and Tower Group to conduct detailed inspections of all six of the city's water tanks prior to the end of the year.

Madison Utilities Manager Brian Jackson said the inspection most likely will be completed sooner but that each tank must be drained prior to being checked by workers. Jackson said even with the draining of tanks, Madison water customers should not experience any loss of service or pressure during the project.

The tank inspection, the city's first in more than a decade, is the first stage in an overall project to make repairs and improvements to any deficiencies found during the inspections. Jackson said those improvements would most likely require a "significant capital investment" and maybe even financing to fund the work.

"Asset management is extremely critical," said Courtney. "If we don't have a management program in place we're not going to have regular maintenance and that's when you get hit with larger unexpected costs."

The Board of Public Works held Monday's meeting in the City Council chambers but with no audience present. Courtney noted that with the next stage of the state's reopening plan set to begin Friday, the public could be allowed back into meetings by the Board's next session on Monday, June 1.
